Ethnicity, Tribalism and Racism: a Global Challenge for the Christian Church and its Mission

Boubakar Sanou, Andrews University

First Page 94
Last Page 104

Abstract
“Ethnic, tribal, and racial differences have been successfully used either to build up or tear down communities and neighborhoods. The purpose of this paper is to explore issues related to ethnicity, tribalism, and racism and the consequent challenge they pose to the Christian church in general. Because mission always involves the crossing of ethnic and cultural boundaries, it is important that the issues related to ethnicity, tribalism, and racism be addressed and put into the biblical perspective.”

Recommended Citation

Included in
Christianity Commons, International and Area Studies Commons, Leadership Studies Commons, Missions and World Christianity Commons

Download

Included in
Christianity Commons, International and Area Studies Commons, Leadership Studies Commons, Missions and World Christianity Commons

SHARE

Washington and Jefferson were slave owners.